New Meaning Foundation were looking to convert an empty warehouse into a training workshop and communal space for young people to learn life skills. This included the creation of a workshop, Kitchen area and disabled toilet.

PROJECT SOLUTION

As part of a CSR project, EA-RS assisted in the refurbishment and fit out of this 'empty shell' by fitting emergency lighting, upgrading existing lighting, which included the fitting of a new sub distribution and general 230v power and sub circuits.

PROJECT RESULT

New areas were created and complemented by a new installation of lighting, emergency lighting, disabled toilet and all 230v power requirements for the kitchen, fitness, client brief and construction areas.

Jim Clarke the EICR Contracts Manager of EA-RS and his team went above and beyond for us here at New Meaning Training in Stratford upon Avon. Jim has made what was not an easy job seem effortless, coming up with brilliant solutions, meeting our needs, and the needs of our students. We will be forever grateful for the love and passion he has put into our centre making it a special place for everyone involved. Not only did EA-RS supply everything that was needed at no cost, he worked with true professionalism. I would not hesitate to fully endorse him and EA-RS to anybody.
